MEXICO.

question of our relations with Mexico is one of absorbing interest, and it should be discussed calmly and dispassionately, with the view of arriving at the proper solution To do this we must go back many years and see what produced the condition of affairs now existing on our border, and the cause being found, through it discover the remedy to be applied.

The Anglo-Saxons who were attracted to se Mexican State of Texas by the richness of its soil, the mildness of its climate, and glowing, rose-colored promises of Mexican Government, soon found that while the soil and climate were all that was claimed for them, the promises of the Mex-icans were totally unreliable. Instead of freedom and protection which were promi-ised, tyranny and oppression were given. These settlers belonged to a race that had never submitted to tyranny, from the days when the barons of England extorted the hold the tea a tyrannical Government attempted to force upon an unwilling peo-ple. THE statement was made a day or two sine that a little seven-year-old boy, while playing with some companions, was lost in a vacant house, and could not be found. Of course this occurred in Philadelphia. All the vacant houses in the city were searched, and the usual CHARLIE Ross sensation created. It now turns out to be a peculiar case of manulaughter. WILLIE Brance, the victim, while playing o a landing near the foot of Vine street, was pushed overboard by one of the other urchine (none of them being eight years of age) and drowned. Instead of giving the slarm the drowned. Instead of giving the starm me three concected a story that they had been playing in an empty house, and that some larger boys had driven them away and locked Bismon up in a closet. For three days the police searched all the vacant houses, but could find no trace of the missing lad. At last the body was found in the river, when one of the schemers, manned Alexander, confessed the true story. The boys were ar-reated, and to-day the coroner will hold an inquest in the case. They gave as an explana-tion for their wild story that they were afraid of being whipped at home. They played their part well, and but for the finding of the body the police might have been searching yet.

IT HAS TRANSPIRED that the Bible does not always work good deeds. The wife of Rev WM. P.
